

Massachusetts Energy Efficient Appliance Rebate Program Launches July 28

Customers can follow the steps below to participate:

- Customers can confirm the real-time availability of rebate funds via the program's website, the customer service phone line, or a registered retail location.
- Customers outside of the tornado zone who purchase a new ENERGY STAR® room air conditioner on or after July 28 must bring in their old unit for recycling at the time of purchase, and certify on their rebate application that they have traded their old one in. This return/recycling component is waived for customers from tornado-impacted communities.
- Customers who purchase a new ENERGY STAR® refrigerator on or after July 28 can accept delivery and have their old refrigerator removed at the same time. Those outside of the tornado zone must certify on their rebate application that their old refrigerator has been hauled away.
- Customers fill out a rebate application online, which places a hold on the requested funds. Those who apply via the customer service center will receive their completed application in the mail. The signed application, which includes certification that a refrigerator and/or room air conditioner has been traded in, is sent with proof of purchase(s) to Helgeson Enterprises Inc. The return/recycling component is waived for customers from tornado-impacted communities.
- Receipt and progress of the application can be tracked online or via the service center.
- Rebate payments will be sent via U.S. mail.

Prior to purchase, customers are encouraged to check how much rebate funding is available by going online to the rebate program website, www.MassEnergyRebates.com, where they'll be able to track the status of funds and their own rebate applications. There will also be a customer service center available for those who don't have access to the website. In addition, retailers can provide customers with real-time status of funding in-store.
